

P23593.S06

ABSTRACT

A securing device for a spring is provided, the device having a generally hollow spring support having a spring mount having a projection on an inner side of the spring support and configured to support the spring, the device further having a generally annular coupling ring configured to connect to the spring support to secure the spring to the spring support.